

Meet Our Guest Instructor

Dr. Robert Pojasek is an internationally recognized authority on the elimination of costly waste. With 30 years experience working with a diverse range of industry sectors and governments, he has helped organizations use methods that he has developed to plan and implement programs focused on achieving a goal of zero waste. He is best known for the development of the highly acclaimed Systems Approach to process characterization, problem solving and decision-making. His research and publications have helped companies, governments and communities find means of moving down the path to sustainability.

An Adjunct Associate Professor at the Harvard School of Public Health, Dr. Pojasek has also been in the consulting field for 26 years. He has specialized in pollution prevention and cleaner production for the past 16 years, and his technical expertise is sought worldwide.

67 Ways to Stop Throwing Money Away!

Patricia Griffin, President and Founder of the Green Hotels Association will share information on ways hotels can recycle, save water and energy, reduce the amount of chemicals used in cleaning, support environmentally friendly landscaping, and promote ecotourism.

Ms. Griffin is a native Texan, and is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin. She has been featured on CNN, a number of national and international radio broadcasts, and has gained the attention of newspaper and print media.

Additional speakers and presenters include Mr. Darin Steen of the Bois Forte Bay Resort and Casino in Minnesota, who has successfully implemented waste reduction and recycling programs at the resort. Other presentations will be by experts in water and energy conservation, and tribal representatives who are proactively working to prevent pollution and protect our land, water, and health.

Each attendee is encouraged to stay on Friday the 23rd to visit with TSWAN members. See firsthand who we are, our mission and goals, our accomplishments, and the difference we're making in Indian Country
